J'ai un peu plus d'esprit que lui, I have a little more wit than he.

Il promet plus qu'il ne peut tenir, he promises more than he can perform.

Il n'est rien dans cet homme que j'aie plus admiré que la Constance qu'il fit paroître en la mort de son fils, there's nothing in him that I admired more than the Constancy he shewed upon the death of his son.

Je l'estime plus qu'homme du monde, I value him more than any man in the world besides.

Plus qu'on ne sauroit croire, more than one can imagine.
Vous avez fait plus que je n'exigeois de vous, you have done more than I demanded of you.

Plus de peine que de plaisir, more pains than pleasure.

Plus de vin que d'eau, more wine than water.

Je n'ai pas plus de loisir qu'il ne m'en faut, I have no more spare time than just what I need.

Il y a plus de Brebis que de Loups, there are more Sheep than Wolves.

J'ai fait plus de perte que de profit, I have lost more than I got.

Vous avez plus de courage que de force, you have more courage than strength.

Les uns ont plus de force que les autres, some have more strength than others.

Il n'est rien que je souhaite avec plus de passion, there is nothing I wish for with more passion.

Il n'est personne qui vous soit plus Ami que moi, there's no body that is more your Friend than I am.

Combien plus de plaisir prendrons nous à ces choses là ? how much more pleasure shall we take in those things ?

J'ai plus de sujet de pleurer que de rire, I have more reason to weep than to laugh.

C'est quelque chose de plus grand, 'tis something greater.

Non plus, no more.
On n'avance auprès de lui non plus par menaces que par prières, there's no more good to be done with him by foul means than by fair.

Non plus que s'il étoit mort, no more than if he were dead.

Ni plus ni moins, neither more nor less.

Bien plus, much more.

Nous sentons bien plus nôtre mal que celui d'autrui, we are much more sensible of our own evils than of other mens.

Tu r'étonnerois bien plus, si tu savois tout, thou wouldst wonder much more if thou didst know all.

Je ne m'étonne plus de cela, I wonder no more at it.

Ne le craignez plus, fear him no more.

Il n'a plus envie de faire la Guerre, he desires no more to make War.

Qui plus est, which is more, more than that.

Il est mort, & qui plus est, il est enterré, he is dead, and which is more, he is buried.

Il m'injurie, & qui plus est, il me bat, he rails at me, and more than that he beats me.

Il me veut mal, & qui plus est, sans aucun sujet, he wishes me evil, and that without a cause.

Quoi plus ? what is there more ?
N'y a-t-il plus rien ? is there no more ?

Rien plus, nothing more.

Je n'ai plus de force, I have no more strength.

De plus, outre cela, moreover, besides, again.

De plus en plus, more and more.

Il me plait tous les jours de plus en plus, he pleases me every day more and more.

Tout au plus, pour le plus, at the most.

Plus, plus long tems, longer, the longer.

Il demeure plus qu'on ne croioit, he stay's longer than was expected.

Vous demeurez plus long tems que je ne voudrois, you stay longer than I would have you.

Nous en ferons plus long tems ensemble, we shall be the longer together for it.

Plus, above.
Plus de deux cens ont été tuez, above two hundred were killed.

Je n'y ai pas été plus de deux mois, I was not there above two months.

Cet habit m'a servi plus d'un an, I wore this suite of clothes above a twelvemonth.

Le Combat a duré plus de deux heures, the Fight lasted above two hours.

Ils n'étoient pas plus de cinq cens, they were not above five hundred.

Il a plus de trente ans, he is above thirty years old.

Il m'a donné plus de cent coups de poing, he hath given me above a hundred blows with his fist.

Il y a plus de trois mois, it is above three months since.

Plus, the more.

Plus je me presse moins j'avance, the more hast the worse speed.

Plus il cache sa pauvreté, plus elle paroît, the more he hides his poverty, the more it appears.

Plus on est modeste plus on est aimable, the more modest a man is the more amiable he is.

Plus une chose est excellente, plus elle est rare, the more excellent a thing is, the more rare it is.

Plus je desire passionnément que cela arrive, plus j'ai peine à croire qu'il doive arriver, the more passionately I desire it should happen, the more I doubt of its coming to pass.

But sometimes Plus preceding an Adjective is made in English by the Comparative ; as,

Il est plus sage que moi, he is wiser than I.

Je suis plus vieux que lui, I am older than he.

Plus tôt, de meilleure heure ; sooner, before.

Venez y plus tôt, si vous pouvez, come thither sooner if you can.

Ne vous mettez pas en peine, j'y serai plus tôt que vous, trouble not your self, I'll be there before you.

Il viendra plus tôt qu'on ne pense, he will come sooner than is expected.

Je n'aurai pas plus tôt receu de vos nouvelles que je partirai, as soon as I hear from you I shall march off.

Il ne fut pas plus tôt entré qu'il expira, he was no sooner gone in but he expired.

Au plus tôt, as soon as possible.

Venez le plus tôt que vous pourrez, come as soon as ever you can, come with as much speed as may be.

Le plus, la plus, les plus, the most.

C'est l'homme le plus emporté que j'aie vu de ma vie, he is the most passionate man that ever I saw.

C'est la plus vertueuse femme qu'il y ait dans notre Ville, she is the most virtuous Woman in our Town.

Ce sont les plus civilisés que j'aie jamais connu, they are the most civilized that ever I knew.

Sometimes the same must be rendered by the English Superlative ; as,

C'est le plus civil Gentilhomme du monde, he is the civillest Gentleman in all the World.

Elle est la plus belle de toutes, she is the fairest (or the handsomest) of all.

Que l'on die ce que l'on voudra, nous sommes sans contredit les plus grands Guerriers de l'Europe, let the World say what it will, we are undoubtedly the most warlike People in Europe.

Plusieurs, many, a great many.

Il y en a plusieurs qui ne s'en soucient pas, there be many that don't care for it.

Plusieurs fois, many times, several times, often, oftentimes.

En plusieurs façons, many ways, a great many ways.

Plupart, la plupart, pour la plupart, most, the most (the greatest) part, for the most part.

La plupart des hommes en sont là, that's the humour (nature, or disposition) of most men.

Cela touche plus les esprits de la plupart des hommes, that works more upon the minds of most men.

La plupart du jour, most part of the day.

La plupart du jour se passa à contester, the greatest part of the day was spent in dispute.

Les hommes sont ignorans pour la plupart, men are for the most part ignorant.

Plutôt (lors qu'il s'agit de choix, ou de préférence) rather.

Je dois plutôt aider mon Frere que mon Cousin, I should rather help my Brother than my Cousin.

Je mourrai plutôt que de le souffrir, I will die rather than suffer it.

Je crains que ce ne soient plutôt des envieux que des amis, I fear they will rather prove Enemy's than Friends.

Il devroit plutôt être mari de cela, he should rather be sorry for that.

Plutôt, sooner. V. Plus tôt (in two words) before the word Plusieurs.

C'est être sage que de vivre ainsi, 'tis like a wise man so to live.

C'est regner que de servir Dieu, he reigns that serves God.

Allez, for que vous êtes, go, like a sot as you are.

O la belle chose que la Vertu! Oh! what a brave thing is Virtue!

Cen'est pas trop que cela, that is not too much.

Lastly Que is sometimes used instead of repeating either of these two particles, Quand, or Si, as,

Ce sera quand vous voudrez, & que je pourrai, it shall be when you will, and when I can.

Quand il fera beau tems, & que nous aurons le loisir, when it is fine weather, and when we have leisure.

S'il y va, & que je le sache, if he go thither, and I know of it.

Si vous le voulez, & que je ne le veuille pas, if you will have it so, and I not.

Que (a Conjunction) that.

Il m'a dit, qu'il ne partirait pas cette semaine, he told me that that he should not go away this week.

Je suis fâché que vous aiez fait cela, I am sorry that you have done this.

But sometimes Que is better left out than expressed in English; as, Ils croioient que la Ville auroit été prise dans moins d'un mois, they thought the Town would have been taken in less than a month.

Pensez vous qu'il vienne, ou qu'il soit en chemin? do you think he is a coming?

Pensez vous qu'il vienne, ou qu'il doive venir? do you think he will come?

Avertissez le qu'il se prenne garde, bid him take heed, bid him look to himself.

J'ai peur que ma mere meure, I fear my mother will die.

Je crain que vous ne compreniez pas bien ce que je dis, I am afraid you don't apprehend well what I say.

Sometimes it is made by whether, and till; as for example,

Il importe peu qu'il le fasse ou non, it is no great matter whether he do it or no.

N'attendons pas qu'il nous en prie, let us not stay till he intreats us.

Lastly it may be thus rendered; as,

J'attens qu'il sorte, I stay for his going out.

Je croi qu'oui, I believe so.

Il croit que non, he believes not.

Je gage que si, I will lay it is so.

Je gage que non, I will lay it is not so.

En fin c'est la Valeur qui nous inspire cette noble ardeur la quelle nous fait entreprendre les choses les plus hautes & les plus difficiles, qui nous prête des armes pour comba-tre nos Enemis, qui nous donne des forces pour les donter, & qui apres nous avoir fait trionfer de tout ce qui peut s'opposer à nous nous met en possession d'une Gloire qui ne finira jamais, Lastly 'tis Valour which inspires us with that noble ardor that makes us attempt the highest and most difficult things, which puts arms into our hands to encounter our Enemy's with, which gives us strength to overcome them, and which having made us to tri-
